[By Telegraph to The Tribune.]
Beston, May 8.—The Yankees received their second shut-out of the series at the hands of the Red Sox here to-day. Leonard's fine pitching baffled Chance's men and Boston won by a score of 3 to 0. The left-hander struck out eleven men and allowed only three hits.

Keating pitched almost as well for the visitors in the early stages of the game. but weakened hadly in the eighth inning, when Boston made all its runs. Uncertain support helped to upset the big spitball pitcher when the attack grew hot.

Not a hit was made by any Boston batter until the sixth inning, when Hooper pounded a drive to right field after two men had been retired. Rain fell through-

Boston has now avenged itself upon the Yankees, for when the Red Sox visited New York Chance's men held them runless in the two games which were played The Yankees have not made a run since Chance resumed his duties as manager, but the Peerless Leader says that the hunger strike will not be prolonged further if he can help it. Neither side had any good opportunities ore until the eighth, when the Red bunched hits and the Yankees bunched errors. Leonard did not use a great deal of speed, but the men who wonderful curve ball. His control, usually his one weakness, was good, for he passed only two men. Ray Keating did great execution with his spitball in the

The best chance the Yankees had to score came in the first inning. Maisel began with a base on balls and Hartzell sent him to second with a neat sacrifice up the third base line. When Walsh hit to Gardner the Boston infielder tried to trap Maisel off second, but the Yankee slid back to safety and Waish was also safe at first. Harry Williams could not fathom e sweeping shoots of Leonard and fanned. Holden was out on an easy bounder to the pitcher.

with a single to centre and Leonard bunted up the first base line. Carrigan taking second on the sacrifice. Engle hit a slow bounder to Maisel and beat it out, but although the third baseman had no chance for a play he threw just the same. Pls toss was very wild and Carrigan came home, while Engle went to second.

Hooper got a scratch hit to Williams and Engle went to third. Speaker's single to centre scored the runner from third

The Yankees nad a bit of a rally in the pinth. After Reynolds, pinch hitting for Keating, had fanned. Maisel beat out a hit to Engle. Leonard threw out Hartzell mann started in to twiri for the chamand Maisel went to second. Walsh walked and Williams filled the bases by outfooting an infield tap.

The bases were loaded and opportunity beckoned Bill Holden. He fanned for the
